

MSU-CDC Convergence of Human & Animal Health Workshop

OBJECTIVES

Participants will learn and share ideas around the concept of convergence and infectious disease ecology

Attendees will gain further insights into these concepts through discussions involving multiple-disciplines and different subject matter experts

MSU Participants will have a better understanding of CDC, its mission, and its ways of operating and partnering

Create an environment conducive to surface new areas of research and education in the domains of human, animal and environmental health

CDC participants will gain new knowledge about land grant universities and Tier 1 Research institutions and better understand the value of building collaborative relationships

Participants will discover new value and opportunities in partnerships between CDC and academe as well as discover new MSU opportunities in public health, animal health, environmental health, health marketing, and improving health in all these areas, individually and collectively, especially as part of a “One Health” theme.
